Floyd E. Turner

We are surrounded by corn fields. Most of our transmitters are in rural areas, and often, literally in the middle of a corn field...although some years it is a soybean field. But as the crops mature, they turn yellow, then brown, and often, almost white before they are harvested. The beautiful green fields of summer are gone, and we know harvest time is here.

In the Gospel of John, Jesus must have been looking at a similar landscape as He said to His disciples:

Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest. (John 4:35)

Those words really resonate in my heart and mind as I look around at the fields, ready for the combine. The days are short, the harvest is soon, and time is quickly passing by. It is a perfect picture of the world in which we live...one that has a limited time left before the Lord of the Harvest comes.

It renews the urgency of the challenge we face to broadcast God's Word, to share the Good News and invite those we interact with daily to know Him as Savior. It's not enough for us to simply be here to encourage one another and lift up the hurting among us...we must be about the King's business, for the time is short.

Thanks to everyone who joined us during the Sharathon last month...we were so blessed to see that so many understood the urgency of the theme "The Time is Now," and answered the challenge. As we begin our 30th year of radio ministry in the greater Tri-State area, we are even more committed to fulfill the mission God has given us: "...seeing lives changed for eternity as together, we broadcast God's Word."

As you pray and as you give financially, you play a vital role in completing that mission call. Thanks for all you do.
Maranatha!
